As Wyoming’s fiscal woes continue, our elected officials are challenged with finding additional revenue to fund government services, programs, and K-12 for the years ahead. As you can expect, they are looking at virtually every tax currently in statute for increasing along with adding a gross receipts tax. Spending cuts and savings are also a big part of the equation, as well. With the schools districts threatening lawsuit against the state, it’s certain to be a busy and fun-filled year.
